

STUDENTS BACK HOME FOR XMAS

Parents of Nine Hundred Boys at Notre Dame Will Welcome Lads Back During the Christmas Holidays.

Nine hundred homes in various parts of the union will be gladdened during these Christmas holidays by the presence of boys who have returned from Notre Dame.

For two weeks before last Friday, the date set for the beginning of vacation, Notre Dame students talked of nothing else; the boys who were to go home, of the pleasures they were anticipating, while their less fortunate brothers planned for to make the best of it.

Boys from New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts in the class from Louisiana and Tennessee and even Texas to the south, and Idaho and Wyoming in the west, have taken advantage of the short Christmas vacation to journey home. Though it takes some of the men two and three days to reach their destination, they could not resist the call of Christmas.

Notre Dame draws an annual attendance of over a thousand students from 38 of the states of the union and from eight foreign countries. Of this number not more than a tenth will remain for the holidays. Illinois leads this year in the attendance figures for the year, the great central state has 270 boys at Notre Dame. The majority of these come from Chicago. Indiana ranks second with over 150 students, and because of the nearness of their homes most of the Hoosier boys are able to spend the holidays with their relatives.

Many Come Far. Michigan and Ohio, the boundary states, send over 50 boys to Notre Dame. Of the more distant commonwealths New York, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania lead the other states with 40 students each. Notre Dame looks even to the most outlying states of the union for her students, and much distant states as Oregon, Texas, Massachusetts and Oklahoma send a yearly quota of ten or more boys.

The university is also attended by other than boys of the United States. Canada has sent six students from such distant places as Nova Scotia and Quebec. Mexico contributed 30, while Cuba, Peru and other southern countries bring the Latin-American representation to over 50. None of these students go home for the holidays for in many cases there would not be time enough during the holidays to do even necessary traveling.

Distance from home, however, has not deterred many of the students from returning for the holidays. One man journeyed as far west as Pocatello, Idaho, and another to Cheyenne, Wyo. Some of the boys were obliged to leave two days before they reached their homes in Texas, Louisiana and Tennessee.

About 100 boys have remained at the university during the holidays. About half of these come from the Latin-American countries, but there are many students from the states who can not go home because of the distance. Oregon will be represented by eight or nine, Texas by five and Massachusetts by over ten. Their hardest time came when the other boys left for home.

But the lot of those who will spend the holidays at Notre Dame will not be unpleasant. They will welcome the two weeks' freedom from classes. Much that is home-like will be found in the Christmas dinner for each table is graced with a whole turkey with cranberry sauce and mince pie. Another event that will in spirit take many back home is the annual midnight mass at St. Mary's. One cannot adequately describe the walk to the church in the crisp winter night nor the feeling of good-will occasioned by the commemoration of the first Christmas.

In comparison with its usual hustle and bustle the campus at Notre Dame now seems deserted. The absence of 900 students, rushing here and there to classes and to meals, is missed during the holidays. On Friday conditions seemed chaotic. Men were rushing from their last classes to catch the first train that would speed them home. Overcrowded cars rushed eager boys to railroad stations, to the Lake Shore, the Grand Trunk, and Vandalia. But now the campus seems solemn, indeed, but its quiet will be broken, all too quickly for most of the boys, when the students again begin pouring back for six more months of study.
